

The Sunday service was a celebration indeed! The music and meditation set the stage for the sermon, "The Coin of the Realm". I felt the Spirit move within me and had to ask myself, "What coin am I trading in? Have I bought into the world's way of thinking?" Being honest, I really had placed too much value in things. I do believe we are all made in the image of God and God is Love, therefore, I AM LOVE. It is the stuff we are made of! If I am not remaining in that state of being then I am not "living". With my newly found determination to live differently I went through the week of Michael's workshops and my life has truly changed. I realized that once I acknowledged the truth there was no going back and no excuses for not going forward. Responsibility hits hard and I know it will require commitment to make changes but wow what fulfillment awaits me. Michael gave us tools each night to use in this process – and it is a continual process – but the tools only work if we use them – it is up to us to do our own work.
